(54) Bet control method for race game

(57) The invention is a game apparatus comprising a plurality of satellites connected to central controlling means, and display means with a miniature race field on which a plurality of miniature racing objects perform races under the control of the central controlling means; wherein each of said plurality of satellites is provided with betting and paying-out means and a display, wherein each player elects for an expected racing result and bets at one of the satellites. The central controlling means provide each of the satellites with pages of information about the racing objects and plural possible racing results. The player selects at least one of the pages and all of the possible racing results displayed on the selected page are set as the player's election.
