(54) Renovation frame for windows and doors

(57) The present invention refers to prefabricated surrounds for windows and doors. The prefabricated surround which is the object of the invention may be directly situated on the façade or on a previous surround, acting as a lining thereof, so that the former surround does not need to be removed and replaced with a new one. Prefabricated surrounds are provided with the external form of a surround for window or door, being hollow its interior in order to be situated on the former surrounds and providing means of attachment to the façade.
