(54) Connecting to a telephone extension using a telephone directory and an audio token

(57) Connecting to a telephone extension using a telephone directory and an audio token.

A system and method for connecting to a telephone extension listed in a telephone number database is disclosed. The method comprises recording an audio token on a mobile communication device. The audio token is associated with a telephone number included in the database. The audio token is transmitted from the mobile communication device to a server over a digital channel. The telephone number in the database that is associated with the audio token is selected using speech recognition. The mobile communication device is then connected with the telephone number.
