(54) A roof window

(57) A roof window comprising a frame, a sash pivotably mounted on the frame via a first sash pivot member located proximal to an end of the frame, a hood fixable to the frame at or about this end for weather proofing the end of the frame and the gap between the frame and the sash. The hood is fixed so that no part of the hood is movable with the sash, the first sash pivot member being located between the frame and the sash so that the sash is openable through its full range of movement about the first sash pivot member without interfering with or contacting the hood.
